

Mentoring: Transforming Ourselves to Meet the Other

“We are all just walking each other home”
—Rumi

June 30 to July 5, 2019

Schedule:

Sunday, late afternoon
and 8:00 am to 5:10 pm, Monday through Friday

at Sunrise Waldorf School in Duncan on Vancouver Island, British Columbia, Canada

Just as we are not born with parenting skills and rely on our children to teach us how to become parents, so, too, we must rely on the children and those who have gone before us to guide us into the teaching vocation. How can we mentor a new teacher in such a way that new possibilities arise out of their own way of working instead of advocating for our own way? What is it that we have to cultivate in ourselves in order to be able to perceive the striving in the other. How do we ask insightful questions of the other rather than dictate the answers? How can we make an effective mentoring contribution to the Waldorf movement?

This week-long deepening, open to experienced EC teachers, will explore the art of mentoring through a variety of approaches. This will be especially helpful for those who are, or want to be, mentoring in their own schools and in the wider movement.

Please join Louise who has been giving mentoring workshops worldwide; Heather, accomplished at skillfully guiding artistic processes in biography; and Wendalyn, our social eurythmist.
